A PHYSICIAN FOR COLLEGE

FULL TIME MEDICAL OFFICER COMING NEXT TERM.

NEW RULING IS MADE

Beginning This Fall, Students Will Be Required to Take Physical Training.

A full-time medical officer will be attached to the department of physical education at the State Teacheds College next year. He is Dr. H. J. Green of Omaha, Neb. Dr. Green, who has had twelve years of experience in school work, is a graduate of this year's class from the University of Nebraska's College of Medicine, Omaha.

Dr. Green will locate in Maryville about September 1. He and Mrs. Green motored here from Omaha yesterday afternoon, and this morning the doctor was in consultation with administrative officials of the College.

Dr. Green will have charge of physical examinations for College students, and in addition he will teach a number of courses in the physical education department. He has made that type of work his speciality while in medical school, and he comes to the College highly recommended by men of both the medical and teaching profession.

Training to Be Required.

The announcement of the employment of Dr. Green as the College physician was accompanied by an administrative ruling regarding physical education, conforming with a conference agreement for the future and in accordance with a regulation of the state superintendent of schools. Students of the school will be required to follow an organized program of physical training during their first two years at the College, beginning this fall. Classes will be given in several lines of activity on this program, and every man and woman enrolled in the school will take part.

Much of the work in this physical exercise program will be in the line of corrective gymnastics. Dr. Green will have charge of this work.

The College physician is a graduate of Midland College, Atchison, Kan., and has taken graduate work in five universities: the University of Kansas, Columbia University, New York, Harvard University, Omaha University, and the University of Nebraska.

At Two Other State Schools.

He has served as either principal or director of physical education in five schools and school systems, and he has been connected with two of Missouri's State Teachers Colleges. He spent two summer quarters and one academic year at the Warrensburg State Teachers College, and last summer he was head of the department of physical education at the Northeast Missouri State Teachers College at Kirksville.

Dr. and Mrs. Green returned to Omaha shortly after noon today.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Herndon and Mrs. Harold Henson of Parnell were in Maryville this week.

Miss Elizabeth Cole Writes Letter Here

Lonesome, But In Good Health And Holding A Good Job, "Missing" Girl Says.

Mrs. W. A. Miller today received a letter from Miss Elizabeth Cole, who was chief operator for the Bell Telephone Co. The letter stated she was in Des Moines, Ia., was lonesome, but in good health, and had a "good job."

Miss Cole left here last Friday, saying she was going to her home at Green City, Mo., but instead she went to Des Moines.

Miss Cole did not say in her letter whether she was coming back to Maryville but indicated that she was going to remain in Des Moines, as she spoke of having the rest of her clothing sent to her at a later time. She had roomed at the Miller home for the last four or five years.

NO DECISION ON OIL WELL

QUITMAN STOCKHOLDERS LEAVE IT TO DIRECTORS.

MAY TRY 3D LOCATION

Opinion Is Divided Between That Course, "Shooting" Present Well or Drilling Deeper.

Opinion as to future procedure was divided among the stockholders of the Quitman Oil and Gas Company at a meeting held last night at the location of well No. 2, northwest of here. The propositions up for discussion were whether to "shoot" the present well at 1337 feet, abandon the project, go deeper or start another well.

The stockholders voted to leave it to the board of directors to decide what course to take with the project, which has been drilled to 1400 feet, with a showing of oil at 1337 feet.

Van Goslee of Skidmore, president of the board of directors, said today that a meeting of the directors would be called for the latter part of this week or the first of next week.

He said that some of the stockholders were in favor of shooting the well, some favored drilling deeper and others thought the best course to take would be to start a third well on another location.

The compromise reached was to leave it to the discretion of the directors.

Mr. Goslee said that George Rose, contractor, had agreed to leave the casing in the well for a week, until a decision was reached.

It is understood that there was some sentiment at the meeting last night for the drilling of another well on the land leased by the company, considerable of which is on the Joe Carden land. If a sufficient amount of money can be raised in the next few days, the Company will probably renew the contract with Mr. Rose to start another well.

Should this proposition fall through, the directors will decide upon shooting the well, or drilling further in location No. 2.

Between forty and fifty stockholders were present at the meeting.

Lawrence Thompson taught last year at the Fox school, north of Barnard, but he will not teach next year. The brothers also have been operating a cleaning and pressing business, which they will continue.

The vote for the proposition was 1224 to 912 against. It required a two-thirds majority for adoption.

DENY A PACT WITH JAPAN

AGAINST U. S. TRADITIONS, OFFICIALS POINT OUT.

REPORTS ARE DOUBTED

Gibson's Advices From Geneva Do Not Indicate Break With Britain, Observers Say.

Washington, June 23.—Government officials here today refused to take seriously reports in the Geneva press of a possible American-Japanese alliance resulting from present arms conference conversations between United States Ambassador Hugh Gibson and Japanese Baron Saito.

Traditional American policy opposes all foreign alliances, they pointed out, and this government is seeking a naval treaty with both Japan and Great Britain, and not a political understanding with one of them.

Other Geneva reports of serious disagreement between Great Britain and the United States on naval limitation proposals are not supported by Gibson's advices to Washington.

Geneva, June 23.—The tri-power arms limitation conference seemed temporarily becalmed today by negotiations over routine organization and exchange of information regarding the tonnages of warships of all classes possessed by Great Britain, Japan and the United States.

Hugh Gibson and Baron Saito were understood to have discussed the British proposal to reduce the size of capital ships.

Geneva, June 23.—The international counterfeiting commission convened here today under the auspices of the League of Nations.

Bellows Sale to Be Held Next Week

Much Interest In This Year's Offering, Firm Announces.—Fifty Head To Be Auctioned.

The twenty-seventh annual Bellows Brothers sale of purebred shorthorn cattle will be held next Wednesday at Parkdale Farm, southwest of Maryville, beginning at 12:30 p. m.

The offering will include fifty head, including fifteen bulls, twelve cows and calves and the rest yearling and 2-year-old heifers. Kraschel, Milne and Hosmer will be the auctioneers.

The Bellows sale annually attracts many of the most prominent Shorthorn breeders in the country.

The families represented at the sale are the Queen of Beauty, the Sweetheart, the Victoria, the Augusta and the Clara. Bellows' Brothers, in their catalogue concerning the sale, stated:

"Our aim has been to combine and intensify the blood of the best bulls of the breed and by so doing afford an opportunity at our annual sales for the purchase of foundation cattle that can be depended on to reproduce their kind."

C. D. Bellows, one of the foremost blooded cattle breeders in Missouri for many years, president of the state fair board and also a member of the state board of agriculture, said today that the cattle industry generally is gradually becoming on a better basis. He said there was apparently much more interest in the coming sale than in the last few years, judging by the number of inquiries for catalogues. Mr. Bellows said the firm had received requests for catalogues of the sale from many outlying states.

The offerings this year are equally as good, if not better than have been put up at Parkdale since the inception of the annual sales.

TEXAS PRISON BREAK FOILED

ASSISTANT WARDEN FRUSTRATES PLOT—FINDS BARS CUT.

KANSANS WEAKENING

Convict Miners, In Mutiny, Telephone For Conference With Warden. In Mine 51 Hours.

Lansing, Kan., June 23.—Hunger is getting in its work in the mine shaft at the Lansing State Prison, and the men have telephoned a request to the warden's office that a conference be held this afternoon.

Prison officials expressed the belief the men were weakening, because they have had but little food in the last few days.

The request was granted, and arrangements have been made for a representative of the prisoners to come to the surface and discuss terms with the authorities.

It was the second telephone communication with the prisoners, who have spent fifty-one hours in the mine, mutinying in protest against a decision that they could not receive cigarettes from outside the prison walls.

Huntsville, Tex., June 23.—While guards from the penitentiary here aided in the search for twenty-four of thirty-five convicts who escaped Tuesday night from Ferguson farm at Midway, one of the boldest attempts at a prison delivery on record here was made "within the walls."

Prisoners inside the penitentiary realized guard strength had been cut down and planned to stage their escape Wednesday night, according to Assistant Warden Sthramm, who frustrated the plot.

Because his force of guards was reduced, Schramm exercised more than ordinary precautions. Several times during the night he made personal rounds. It was on one such inspection that he discovered three iron bars sawed through and a forth almost severed. The prisoners, realized their plan had been discovered and made no break.

No Weakening at Lansing.

Lansing, Kan., June 23. — Still no sign of weakening on the part of 328 prisoners, holding themselves in a mine of the Kansas state penitentiary as a protest against their not being permitted to receive cigarettes, was had today, more than forty-eight hours after the men had mutinied.

Likewise, there was no indication from prison officials that there would be any giving in to the demands of the prisoners. No further word was had from the men.

Officials are continuing their efforts to obtain an answer to the mine telephone, but no reply comes from the mine.

Telephone Rings Once.

The only communication with the prisoners occurred yesterday afternoon, when an unknown voice over the mine telephone stated that the officers wished to speak to their wives.

B. H. Hudspeth, deputy warden, and Lacy Simpson of McPherson, a member of the board of administration, went into consultation. They announced, should the telephone ring again, the speaker would be notified the wife of any officer would be called to the warden's office and messages relayed by the warden.

But the Phone Has Not Rung Again.

Eleven of the fourteen guards are married. Their wives, most of whom live in Lansing, evidently are not worried. No harm was done to the guards in a similar rebellion last July.

No Work in Twine Plant.

No work was done yesterday in the twine plant, employing 129 men.

Officials feared prisoners employed here, in sympathy with the miners, would set a match to the hemp.

Work continued as usual on a building remodeling job, employing ninety, and on the island farm, employing 110.

The usual night guard force, twenty-five men would be augmented for a time with the forty men on the day shift, Hudspeth said. The day crew would be excused if no difficulties appeared probable. A force of 110 guards and officials are kept in easy call at all times.

The demand for cigarettes was made first by the prisoners Sunday. They pounded their cell bars and shouted, in a sing-song unison, "no cigarettes, no coal." This outburst occurred, in milder form, again Monday night. The pris-

Women Eager to Fly the Ocean

Passengers Are Plentiful for Trans-Pacific Expedition; No Announcements Made.

San Francisco, June 23.—If any of the anticipated Trans-Pacific flight expeditions were willing, they would have little trouble finding passengers to take along with them.

Several women from various parts of the country already have requested that they be taken along.

A University of California co-ed applied for the honor of being the first woman passenger on an ocean flight. Two other applications were received by the Hawaiian Pineapple company, whose president, James B. Dole, has offered $35,000 in prizes for flights to Honolulu.

Flight backers have made no announcement that any of the ambitious passengers would be taken along.

FATHER KILLS IN COURTROOM

OKLAHOMAN AVENGES ATTACK ON HIS DAUGHTER.

GIVES BOND AT ONCE

Fifty Persons Volunteer as Sureties for Arch Gilbreath After Slaying At Council Table.

Duncan, Okla., June 24.—Waiving all preliminaries on a charge of murder and making $10,000 bond within two minutes after his charging, Arch Gilbreath, 43-year-old farmer who shot down B. F. Cox, 28, betrayer of his daughter at district court's counsel tables, was released from Stephens county jail.

Fifty persons appeared as prospective bondsmen for the father, who took the law in his own hands as a jury was being selected to try the man whom Gilbreath killed.

Gilbreath waived both arraignment and preliminary hearing. His trial was set for October 3 in the Stephens county court here.

Cox was on trial charged with assaulting three young women April 9, near Duncan. He also was wanted on similar charges at Lawton and Ardmore, Okla.

The jury had just been selected and Judge E. L. Richardson had announced that as the testimony would be shocking in character, some persons might wish to leave the room.

Cox was indicted by a grand jury here last June in connection with attacks on three parties of motorists in which he was charged with beating three young men and assaulting their young women companions.

Faced Robbery Charges, Too.

Cox also was accused of robbing nine persons, including those whom he was alleged to have assaulted. He was arrested on the day following and watches and other jewelry belonging to the young women were said to have been found in his room.

His counsel had indicated that his defense would be insanity. He appeared uncomprehending at his arraignment and today sat apparently insensible to what was going on.

From fifty to sixty persons arose and filed out when Judge Richardson made his announcement.

Gilbreath arose from a spectator's seat, walked forward with revolver in hand and fired three shots into Cox's back as Cox sat at the counsel table. Cox slumped forward in his chair and was dead when persons reached him.

Gilbreath immediately surrendered his weapon to John Jackson, county jailor. Deputy sheriffs rushed forward to seize him but Gilbreath offered no resistance.

Daughter Weds Escort.

It was not announced until after the shooting that Gilbreath's daughter who is 18 years old, had been married to her escort, Bert Blewett, June 18, about nine weeks after the attack. Blewett was robbed on the night of the attack.

Gilbreath made no statement.

The three attacks took place on the outskirts of Duncan. The escorts of the young women were Dan Groves, Leland Bell and Blewett. Each testified at the preliminary hearing that as he was driving with a girl companion, a dark man jumped on the running board of the car and forced him to drive to a wooded section. Each was tied.

It was learned tonight Cox was wanted for similar attacks at Waurika and several attacks and attempted attacks at Wichita Falls, Tex.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 23.—Unless weather conditions change sharply, the tri-motored Fokker monoplane "America" will take off at 4 a. m. tomorrow for Paris, Commander Richard E. Byrd said today.

A Week-end Trip.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y. June 23.—Commander Richard Byrd's flight to Europe, like the transatlantic journeys of Colonel Lindbergh and Clarence Chamberlin, will be a week-end trip, it appeared today as fog, low temperature and wind over the Grand Banks and eastward across the seas held the monoplane America to the ground.

Lindy Into Commercial Field.

Washington, June 23.—Col. Charles Lindbergh intends to devote himself to commercial aviation, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover announced this afternoon.

Hoover's statement came shortly after he entertained Lindbergh at luncheon attended by government air secretaries, Lindbergh and his St. Louis backers, and assistant Secretary of Commerce, Drake.

"His plans for the future," said Hoover, "have not developed fully but will soon take definite and positive shape."

Hoover said Lindbergh would probably leave Washington tomorrow for New York. He will spend the night with his St. Louis backers at Hoover's home.

TEAPOT DOME WITNESS CAN'T GET PASSPORT

State Department Refuses To Reconsider Revoking Of Visa To Harry M. Blackmer.

Washington, June 23.—The State Department today refused to reconsider its action of May 12, revoking the passport of Harry M. Blackmer, former chairman of the Midwest Refining Co., wanted as a witness in the Teapot Dome Oil Lease cases.

American Consul Hale at Marseilles, France, took Blackmer's passport from him after the latter refused a subpoena service from secret service men who discovered him on a Monaca-Nice train.

Since then Blackmer has been served twice with a subpoena, the last time in Paris, June 8.

Being without a pasport, his movements can now be easily traced when he goes to return to this country.

JUNE 22 THE LONGEST DAY; SHORTER NOW

Sun Set A Minute Earlier June 21, Rose A Minute Later Today.—Summer Officially Here.

Summer was officially ushered in yesterday with a sky mostly fair and an even cool temperature. It was the longest day of the year, according to the World Almanac.

The sun rose at 4:34 a. m. and set at 7:29 p. m. yesterday. The sun rose at the same time but set a minute earlier June 21 and today it set at the same time but rose a minute later, the Almanac stated.

The length of the day on June 22 is practically the same in Washington, Virginia, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Utah, Nevada and central California, according to the Almanac.

Summer is the season of the year which in the northern hemisphere generally may be said to comprise the months of June, July and August. The astronomical summer lasts in the northern hemisphere from the June solstice, June 21, to the September equinox, September 21.

Spring, which ended with the beginning of Summer, started March 21. The past spring has been almost unseasonably cool, with a great deal of moisture, except during May, which was nearly a normal month. May also was a normal month regarding the temperature.

Crops in the county are irregular, due to the continuous showers, many of the farmers being unable to get in their oat crops as planned and corn seeding was late for a number of farmers. However, there is considerable fields of the corn in the county that show promise of a good crop, providing the corn ear worm does not ravage the fields, as has been reported.

Rumor of Wabash Change Confirmed

Definite Information Received That Trains No. 3 And 12 Will Be Extended To Omaha.

Wabash passenger trains, Nos. 3 and 12, now having Maryville as their terminal, will be changed and will run through from Omaha to Brunswick, according to more definite information received in Maryville today. It is expected that the trains will be changed in the near future. No. 12 is expected to run on a faster schedule and will have a buffet car. No. 3 will also have a buffet car.

These changes will be made as soon as the schedule is worked out on the main line between Kansas City and St. Louis and other connecting lines.

The Stanberry Headlight this week had the following:

"A possibility that the Wabash Railway may change a portion of their train schedule was indicated in a statement issued Monday by Trainmaster Jas. C. Ferritor. Trains No. 3 and 12 would be affected.

"I have been receiving some inquiries from Passenger Traffic Manager, J. E. Watts, at St. Louis," Mr. Ferritor said, "as to the change of passenger schedules in this territory. I do not know just what the changes will be nor when they will be made, but I think Nos. 3 and 12 will be restored to about their former schedule and run to and from Omaha, instead of stopping and starting at Maryville."

Mr. Ferritor said there were several causes for the proposed change, but there was no specific mention made as to these causes.

Train No. 3 arrives at Stanberry at 6:30 p. m. and leaves at 6:50. It reaches Maryville at 7:45, where it stops for the night. Under the former schedule No. 3 went all the way to Omaha.

No. 12 would leave Omaha in the morning and would reach Stanberry about noon, which is the way it ran before the old schedule was changed.

The change in these trains would not affect other train schedules, Mr. Ferritor believes. This would mean that the two extra trains that have been added to the Wabash service would be continued.

Asked when the change might be made, Mr. Ferritor replied that if the change does come, it will be in the very near future.

oners have been allowed to smoke pipes at all times, it was said. The cigarette demand developed after the Kansas law repealing the anti-cigarette statute became effective.

No Food For Mutineers.

The prisoners have had nothing to eat since their dinner Tuesday. This was rationed to supply each man stew, bread, a bit of dessert and coffee. By doling the food they could continue eating several days perhaps, but not heartily.

A machine gun brought to the prison by Sheriff R. E. Galvin of Leavenworth County was set up "for display purposes."

Dr. Keller Writes From Belgian City

Former Maryville Man Attends Convention Of Rotary International. —Will Remain Several Weeks.

Dr. Fred Keller, formerly a member of the faculty of the State Teachers College of this city but now superintendent of the public schools at Jonesboro, Ark., is attending the Rotary International Convention at Ostend, Belgium, as a delegate from the Jonesboro Rotarians.

W. A. Miller of this city has received a carbon copy of a letter which Dr. Keller wrote to Jonesboro friends, to which he added: "I often think of you and the good people of Northwest Missouri." The letter follows:

"A good Rotarian of Jonesboro suggested that I write a little back. He knew from experience that I would be busy. I am. There is something to do or see all the while, if one makes the most of time.

"I don't mean that Europe has Arkansas beat for I shall be glad to get back but her traditions, history and customs can keep me well occupied for every waking hour on so short a trip.

"Every session of the Rotary International Convention I have attended and have taken copious notes on the speeches. A great many celebrities were here. The convention has closed.

"Between sessions I have visited the Belgian battlefields and some of her old cities and cathedrals. The country is so thickly settled that it looks like cities never end. You can see church steeples and tiled roofed brick houses for miles. Most every foot of land is in use some way. The crops look fine. Stock are purebred. Every animal is slick and fat. I should have told about the people first but they are thrifty and genial.

"Expenses of living are no cheaper here than at home. People seem to think that all Americans roll in wealth. Some of our citizens do use little discretion in tipping and in parading luxury. These people certainly capitalize every thing available. One must pay two francs to get in the old trenches, two francs to see the big guns abandoned by the Germans, two francs to walk up some 362 steps to the top of an old cathedral tower, etc., etc., etc. The Government and the cities tax your hotel bills, your fountain drinks, ets., as well as all fermented and distilled drinks, of which all seem to partake. You need not try and smell my breath when I get home.

"I mean't to tell the news of the Convention but they say it was the greatest of the eighteen annual ones ever held. I'll not attempt to digest the program as I suppose the international press has "run" it all this week, as well as the officers elected. The delegates here numbered 6,700 from 3,925 clubs scattered over 40 countries. The 1928 meeting goes to Minneapolis. English was spoken chiefly, although French was second with a scattering of Spanish, Portuguese and other tongues. The Melbourne, Australia Club won the attendance cup. I found only four other Arkansas men at the convention.

"Tomorrow I leave for Paris and a week in France. I expect to spend some time in Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Holland and in England. I am studying the schools as I go. I visited one this week, as they are still in session but will close shortly for the summer in Belgium.

"I shall be glad to get back to Jonesboro but I am feeling fit and fine. I did not lose a meal from seasickness coming over.

"Respect for Europe but love always for America.

"Sincerely,

"FRED KELLER."

Waited for Wife's Return Since 1895

Chicago, June 23.—Fred Messler is finally convinced his wife has left him for good and has asked for divorce.

He appeared in court and said he and Karlana, his wife, were married in 1889 and that she left him in 1895.

"Why did you wait so long to ask for a divorce?" the judge asked.

"I never lost hope that she would return. But the last couple of years my hopes have dimmed," he replied.

The court indicated he would be granted a divorce.

Ladies' Day Luncheon.

Artistic in every detail were the appointments of the Lindbergh luncheon at the Maryville Country Club this afternoon. The affair was the first of the ladies' day luncheons, which will be a bi-weekly feature at the Club throughout the summer. The lounge and dining room of the recently re-decorated clubhouse made a picturesque setting with flags, and garden flowers in the national colors emphasized in the decorations. On a table in the lounge was a framed picture of the air hero arranged most effectively against a background of American and Lindbergh flags and garden flowers. Standards holding large American flags, gold fringed, were used on two tables nearby. Blue and white flowers decorated the fireplace shelf and roses, in shades of red, banked the piano and fireplace. Miniature airplanes holding tiny national and Lindbergh flags formed the decoration for the dining tables.

Combine tomato pulp, grated cheese, ham, onion, pepper and paprika. Bring to the boiling point over a low fire. Do not let boil. Add butter and eggs slightly beaten and stir and cook by the side of the fire until the eggs are set. Serve at once on hot buttered toast.

Washington, June 23.—Church, dry and reform forces today were planning an organized fight against bootleggers and purveyors of lewd, obscene magazines and periodicals in the national capital.

The widespread activities of the new Citizens Service Association against bootleggers were enlivened when it became known that local bootleggers are employing their own spies to protect their own interests against the spies informing the association of the bootleggers' activities.

Moscow, June 23.—Henry Ford has inconspicuously made his way into the Russian language. "To Fordize" has become a recognized new word, meaning to organize efficiently. As many factories as possible are being "Fordized" with all speed by re-arranging the machinery to speed production and reduce manual labor, installing more automatic machinery and replanning the entire industrial organization to avoid loss of motion and repetion of effort. Many Russians dream of the future when their country will be completely "Fordized."

Jack Rowlett Is Given M. D. Degree

Harvard Commencement Held This Morning—Maryville Boy Will Have Sheepskin Forwarded.

Cambridge, Mass., June 23. — With traditional pomp and ceremony Harvard University this morning conferred nearly 1,500 degrees in course of which some 600 will be presented to undergraduates in Harvard college, nearly 400 in the law and medical graduates school and in lesser numbers in other departments.

Hundreds of alumni who have achieved distinction in many fields of human endeavor have returned to their alma mater for the greatest event of the year. Many men of outstanding importance in the affairs of the country who are not graduates of Harvard will be present as guests of the occasion, and as always interest will center in the awarding of the degrees.

Prominent among those graduates from the medical school and sharing the highest scholastic distinction to whom will be granted the degrees of M. D. with distinction is Jack Rowlett of Maryville, Mo. Midst the tremendous applause from their families, with invited guests and lumni, who by coveted ticket will fill the quadrangle to the very limit of its capacity, the candidates will be presented by the deans of their respective schools to receive their degrees from President A. Lawrence Lowell.

Jack Rowlett completed his work for a degree but did not wait for Commencement and his sheepskin will be forwarded to him here. He has been in Maryville since June 10. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Rowlett. He was a student at the University of Missouri before going to Harvard.

Brewers Confess to St. Joseph Holdups

Youths, Who Admit They Robbed Welling Station, Say They Stole Ford And Robbed Station In St. Joseph.

The Brewer cousins, Emson and Paul, who have confessed to holding up the Welling filling station last Friday night, have told officers they helped hold-up a Frederick avenue station in St. Joseph the morning of June 14, after stealing a Ford roadster, the St. Joseph Gazette reported this morning. Emson Brewer is the youth identified as holding up W. L. Welling here.

The boys, who are being held in the Atchison County jail at Rock Port, made the confession of the St. Joseph holdup to Sheriff A. P. Pitzer of Buchanan County. An effort was being made by St. Joseph detectives to link the cousins with other robberies in St. Joseph.

Warrents against the Brewers likely will be sworn out, the Gazette said, and held pending the outcome of their trial in Rock Port on a charge of automobile thefts. If the youths are convicted they will be re-arested for trial in Buchanan County as soon as they finish serving prison sentences, the paper indicated.

The Gazette further stated:

"Theft of a Buick roadster in Tarkio Saturday night led to the arrest of the cousins by Earl Cook, deputy sheriff of Holt county, early the next day in Mound City and the finding of the stolen Ford on a farm near Fairfax, where one of the youths formerly was employed.

"The St. Joseph car was the property of W. R. Doane, 632 South Eighth street, and was taken from in front of 3135 Mitchell avenue.

"Several hours after this theft was reported Ernest C. Shelby, attendant at the Diamond Oil company's filling station at Twenty-second street and Frederick avenue, informed the police he had been held up and robbed of $60. Only one man entered the station, Shelby said, and it is supposed the other waited outside in the stolen Ford."

"Fakers" Attempt to "Beat" Farmers Here

Men Posing As Representatives of Poultry Department of University "Do" the County.

Persons posing as representatives of the poultry department of the College of Agriculture of Missouri are "doing" Nodaway County this week and, after giving a demonstration, are selling the farmers' high-priced medicine.

The poultry department of the College of Agriculture has no representatives in Nodaway County this week and when it does have, the representatives do not try to "gip" the farmers, one agricultural authority said today.

The "agents" who are posing as from the University are "fakes," the farmers are warned.

Mrs. James MaHarry and daughter, of Berkeley, Cal., visited in Maryville today with the former's aunt, Mrs. C. J. Alderman. They motored through and are en route to Lenox, Ia., and Rockport, Ill., on a visit.

Frank Cook is under treatment at St. Francis Hospital for an infected lip. He was admitted to the hospital yesterday.

The Third Term Bogey

The theory which maintains that President Coolidge is now serving his second term is founded upon one of the strangest delusions and perversions in American Constitutional history, observes an editorial in "The North American Review."

Says the Review, "Mr Coolidge is now serving not his second but merely his first term as President. There is nothing clearer in the Constitution than that a man can become President only through the votes of the Electoral College of the House of Representatives, and in no other way; and that in case of a vacancy in the Presidential office, the powers and duties of the office devolve upon the Vice-President, who however remains merely Vice-President and Acting President. Nor is there anything more patent in the records of Congress of eighty-six years ago than that these facts were realized on the occasion when for the first time the Presidential office was rendered vacant by death. The ablest Constitutional authorities in both Houses sustained that view of the case; and they were overruled, and the Vice-President was falsely declared to be President, only through one of the most arrogant partisan manoeuvres ever witnessed within the walls of the Capitol. The questions of President Coolidge's renomination, and of his reelection if renominated, are of course open; but attempts to determine them in the negative must logically be based upon some other ground than that of the incorrectly-called 'third term'."

Osborn—A Carthage company has paid $4,000 for forty walnut trees on the farm of the Moore brothers, near this city. This "crop" pays better dividends than any other, the owners of the trees believe.

Bowling Green—One hundred merchants of Pike County are cooperating in a series of newspaper advertisements, in which they are telling of the advantages offered by the county.

Fight Over Casket of Floyd Collins

Exhibition of the casket of Floyd Collins, Kentucky youth who lost his life in exploring Said Cave, has stirred a legal fight. Homer Collins (left), brother of Floyd, is protesting "commercialization of his brother's body," by Dr. Harry B. Thomas (right), owner of Crystal Cave, where the casket was placed on exhibition. Dr. Thomas claims he obtained a written permission from Lee Collins, Sr., father of Floyd, for removal of the body to his cave.

This and That

Maryville doesn't utilize its air mail much, according to the local postoffice department. Only a few letters go by air mail, whereas quicker service could be obtained. Maybe if the postoffice department would issue prettier stamps for the air mail more people would buy them.

A reader from Kansas sends this one:

A baby's smile, a woman's kiss,
A book, a chair, a pipe, a friend,
And just a little cash to spend.

Someone threw an old shoe through an open upstairs window in the band room last Monday evening. The band was practicing at the time and the shoe came very nearly striking Miss Irma Dalby on the head. It was no doubt a thoughtless act on the part of the one throwing the shoe but the guilty one should think twice before repeating the act again.—Hopkins Journal.

A local minister confided to us recently that maybe the reason some people always seem to get their prayers answered is because they never quit nagging at the angels until they stop and listen.

A bull snake measuring five feet long was killed last Saturday in front of the Pennington Cafe at Hopkins. It is thought the snake had taken refuge in an automobile and when the car parked here the snake decided to get out and look over the business district of the town but did not get far before being killed. Visitors as a rule are welcome, but the snake family is not included.

It will soon be time for another political campaign. In fact we know two or three people who are working on campaign speeches and platforms, and otherwise "mending fences." Its a shame all these ice cream suppers and church socials pass off without some candidate around hunting the elusive vote. Truly its a golden opportunity.

Mrs. Mell Sheley of Hopkins is quite an industrious lady, finding time to make eight pounds of cheese each day, besides looking after her household duties, the Hopkins Journal says. The cheese is of very fine quality, surpassing in richness the shipped in kind.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, June 23.—The wheat market was erratic and prices averaged lower today, as a result of better weather generally over the belt and the impending new crop movement in the Southwest. The cash market was 1½ cents lower, with a slow demand.

Corn was under heavy pressure right from the start and sold off sharply, weakness in wheat and reports from the Southwest that the crop is generally much better than predicted checking buying.

The cash demand was slow, with prices 1 cent lower.

Oats were sluggish and lower. Trade was light and without feature. The cash market was ¾ cent lower.

Provisions were dull and a little lower.

U. S. Enters Another Activity of League

American Government Is Represented at Mixed Commission for Suppression of Counterfeiting.

Geneva, June 23.—The United States began participation in still another League of Nations' activity today when W. H. Moran, chief of the secret service of the United States Treasury Department, represented the American Government on the League's mixed commission for international action against counterfeiting currency.

The creation of the present commission by the League of Nations was the result of the famous counterfeiting exploits of Prince Louis de Windischgraetz of Budapest who started in to flood several European countries with counterfeited French paper money.

Members of the Little Entente took the matter up with the council of the League of Nations, and insisted that action be taken to make counterfeiting an international crime.

The commission which convened today is composed of Dr. Pospisil, acting chairman of the League's permanent Finance Commission, representatives of the Bank of France, the Reichsbank of Germany, the Swiss National Bank; specialists on criminal law appointed by Belgium, England and Italy, and representatives of the prosecution authorities of Austria, the United States and Holland.

It is expected that the commission will draft an international convention for the prosecution of counterfeiters and also recommend the creation of a central bureau that will keep in touch with the police authorities and banks of issue of all the countries of the world.

The convention will especially provide for the extradition of counterfeiters.

Stockton—Strawberry growers in the Ozark region will receive approximately $4,500,000 for their 1927 crop, the yield breaking all records.

Reported Details of Ford Car Repudiated

Advertising Counsel for Company Charges "Imaginative" Material Stolen From Their Offices.

"Alleged specifications" of the new Ford car, widely published yesterday, have "no warrant of truth," it is declared in a telegram to the Democrat-Forum and Tribune today from N. W. Ayer and Son, advertising counsel for the Ford Motor Co. The telegram, charging theft of certain tentative advertising material, follows:

"Philadelphia, Pa.

"N. W. Ayer and Son, advertising counsel for Ford Motor Co., advise you that theft has taken place from their offices in Philadelphia of certain preliminary and experimental advertisements in regard to the new Ford car. Material used therein, which in many particulars, is fictitious and imaginative, has been issued as authentic news by a new agency. N. W. Ayer and Son state that the car is not complete, therefore any alleged specifications have no warant of truth. We hope no newspapers will publish these stories. This wire is sent to all newspapers in the United States and Canada.

Motorist Killed in Peculiar Accident

When Automobile Hits Mule Team, Tongue of Wagon Pierce's Body of Car's Driver.

A thrilling story comes to us of a tragedy which occurred on the Jefferson Highway near Davis City last Saturday afternoon or evening, in which an automobile driver was killed in a most unusual manner. A farmer, whose name we did not learn, driving a mule team hitched to a spring wagon had driven out on the highway of his home not far from Davis City. Almost immediately he was met by an automobile being driven at high speed, it is said. The mules, of course, were frightened and spread apart and the auto struck head-on between the mules, the tongue of the wagon passing through the lower windshield and entering the driver's body near the stomach, passing almost through the body. It is said that another car was parked at the side of the highway and it seems that the driver in the approaching car was watching it and perhaps did not see the man with the team until it was too late to avoid the collision.—Cainsville News.

The new law passed at the recent session of the Missouri Legislature takes effect July 3. It provides that within sixty days from that time, county courts shall appoint county highway commissions composed of four members. The text of the law follows:

"Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the state of Missouri, as follows:

"Section 1.There is hereby created and established in the several counties of this state a highway commission to be composed of four members, who shall serve without compensation, and who shall possess the qualifications and be appointed in the manner and for the term in this act provided.

"Section 2. Witain sixty days after the taking effect of this act it shall be the duty of the county court in all counties of this state, except as otherwise in this act provided, to appoint four members of the highway commission, one for a term of one year; one for a term of two years; one for a term of three years; one for a term of four years. Upon the expiration of the term of each of said commissioners, his successor shall be appointed for a term of four years, and every such commissioner shall hold office for the term appointed and thereafter until his successor is appointed and qualified. Not more than two of said commissioners shall be appointed from the same county court district, and not more than two thereof shall be affiliated with the same political party.

"Section 3. It shall be the duty of the county highway commission and said commission shall have the power to locate, lay out, designate, construct and maintain, subject to the approval of the state highway commission, system of county highways not exceeding in aggregate one hundred miles in any county, by connecting by the most practical route the several centers of population in the county, in such a manner as to afford a connection, with such of said centers of population as are not now located on any state highway with such state highways, and so as to afford, as nearly as may be done, a connection with county highways connecting the centers of population of adjoining counties, to the end that all parts of the county shall be connected with the state highway system as now laid out and designated, and that the inhabitants of the county generally shall have and enjoy a system of highly improved farm-to-market roads.

"Section 4. Before construction of any county highway located, laid out, and designated as in this act authorized and provided, or any money, in excess of the cost of such location and designation shall be expended thereon, it shall be the duty of the county highway commission to submit such location to the state highway commission for its approval, and upon approval of such location by the state highway commission, the county highway commission shall proceed to procure the right-of-way for said county highways, said right-of-way to be of the standard width required by the state highway commission for secondary highways not less however, than sixty feet wide, and secure title in fee to such right-of-way by deed of conveyance, or by judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction through condemnation, in all cases where condemnation is necessary, the proceedings shall be in the name of the county highway commission, and otherwise the same as now, or hereafter, provided by law fair condemnation of land by the state highway commission for right-of-way for state highways.

"Section 5. All county highways constructed under the provisions of this act shall be of such type, and upon such grade as to permit of the improvement and building up of such highways from time to time as funds are available to a type equivalent to the secondary highways of state highway system, and of such type as to permit ultimate of hard-surfacing in the manner, and in accordance with the specifications of the state highway or chief engineer of state highway department for hard-surfacing of primary roads of the state highway system.

"Section 7. The county highway commission shall have absolute jurisdiction and control over all highways constituting a part of the county highway system and shall hold title in fee to the right-of-way thereof, and no other officer, board of commission except as in this act specifically provided shall have or exercise any authority or jurisdiction over any such highways. The roads constitutiong the county highway system shall be known and designated as "county highways."

"Section 8. The county highway commission is hereby authorized and empowered to receive, and expend, in the construction and maintenance of county highways, and money expended or property that may be appropriater or donated by any municipal corporation, special road district, township or private individual, and to use and employ whatever means, methods or power, that may be necessary in the construction and maintenance of said county highway, including the power to build culverts and bridges, for which purposes the county highway commission is hereby empowered to employ such technical and other help as may be deemed necessary for the administration and enforcement of this act.

"Section 9. The county may take such additional contributions to said county highway commission as said county court in its judgment may deem necessary.

"Section 10. It shall be the duty of the county highway commission annually to make a complete detailed report to county court by whom appointed, and to the state highway commission, showing in detail the amount of money received, and how applied, and if any such county highway comission fail to make the report herein required, the members shall thereby forfeit their office as such commission.

"Section 11. If, and when, the state highway commission is authorized by law so to do, and may desire, it may take over any part of the county highways of the county system and make refund therefore in such a manner as may now or hereafter be provided by law for making refund to the several counties of this state, and road districts thereof, for highways heretofore designated and taken over by said state highway department whereupon it shall be the duty of the county commission, by proper deed of conveyance, to transfer to state highway department that part of county highway system so taken over."

E. Ova Cook Praised by Idaho Newspaper

Favorable Comment Is Made On Appointment Of New Superintendent Of State Industrial School.

E. Ova Cook, brother of L. C. Cook, T. H. Cook, A. P. Cook and Ellis G. Cook of this city, was recently appointed superintendent of the Idaho Industrial Training School at St. Anthony, Idaho, and the following is from the St. Anthony News:

"E. Ova Cook, for ten years principal of the school and assistant superintendent of the Idaho Industrial Training School, received a well-merited promotion when the State Board named him as superintendent to succeed Supt. Vincent, who goes to the State Board of Education as chief on July 1st. The appointment of Mr. Cook meets with general approval, as Mr. and Mrs. Cook in their ten years residence here have acquired a large circle of friends in all walks of life.

"It is stated that no change is contemplated in the general policy of conducting the School, the system of management developed by Supt. Vincent and the other officers having shown, in addition to general efficiency, possibility of further development to meet the needs of the times.

"Mr. Cook has not yet announced the appointment of his assistant superintendent. It is stated that no changes will be made in the corps of school officers beyond those made necessary by adjustments due to promotions. Mrs. Cook, who has been a parole officer, will probably be given the position of secretary to the superintendent.

"Like a large number of Idaho citizens, Mr. Cook had the good fortune to be born in Missouri. After a course of training in the Normal School at Stanberry, Mo., he taught school eight years in the home state. Beginning in 1905, he started a fifteen year period of service in the Garfield and Cole schools at Boise as a principal. On Feb. 13, 1917, he came to St. Anthony as principal of the Industrial School under Supt. Humphries. Promotion following, made him assistant to Supt. J. Fred Williams, and also Supt. Vincent the past seven years.

"Mr. Cook appears to be one of those men—and they are few—who find they are naturally adapted to a certain line of work, get it and do it. The News congratulates a good man on being placed in a good place."

Prince of Wales, 33 Today, Remains Unwed Despite Pleas of His People and Charms of Several European Princesses

SINCE 1911 World's Most Eligible Bachelor Has Resisted All Efforts To Persuade Him To Marry.

London, June 23.—The world's most eligible bachelor is 33 years old today—and still a bachelor!

Edward Arthur Christian George Andrew Patrick David Windsor, more popularly known as the Prince of Wales, is eating his birthday cake today in one or the other of his various palace homes, while his father, the king, and his mother, the queen, sorrowfully reflect that for more than fifteen birthday's they have said, "next year he'll be married, surely!"

It was back in 1911 that the international hullabaloo about finding a bride for the Prince "Davy" began. In 1911 he was betrothed by public opinion to the daughter of the Kaiser of Germany, Princess Victoria Louise.

Lots Of Reports.

And from that first "engagement" he has been variously reported engaged to every eligible girl of blood royal in the Caucasian world; girls of every religion, girls ranging in age from 16 to 35, beautiful girls and homely girls, studious girls and frivolous girls.

There are enough romantic tales woven about Prince "Davy" to supply all the operas of all time.

One of the most popular has it that his heart is buried in the unknown grave of the Grand Duchess Tatiana Olga, daughter of the Czar of Russia, who was put to death by Bolshevists.

They say that he loved lovely Princess Astrid of Sweden, and was about to make her his when she married Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium.

They say that when, returning from his trip to America, he found dark-eyed Yolanda of Italy a guest of his royal father and mother, he was almost ready again to please the world by mating. But she returned home to wed a dashing cavalry officer.

They say that little Princess Ileana of Rumania pleased him, but that the too-evident eagerness of her match-making mamma, Marie, to noose him as a son-in-law antagonized him until he told her to take Ileana home and "put her in school where she belonged."

Today the prince is 33. King George grows old and weary of cares of state. Prince "Davy" is the idol of his people. They want him on the throne. But they do not want a bachelor king.

But Prince "Davy" only shrugs his shoulders and lets them talk. Many of his intimates seem to believe that he has no hankering to be king, and that if bachelorhood will keep him from the throne and give it to his brother, the Duke of York, and from him to his little daughter, the Princess Elizabeth, nothing could suit him better!

In alarm, the high moguls, seeing first one princess and then another who has been reported engaged to the Prince of Wales, marry another, cry out, "Soon there will be no blooded maidens left!"

But facts are that there are about 1500 maidens of blood royal in Europe and only about 75 eligible princes.

If the Prince of Wales really wants a wife, and a wife who, according to officialdom, would be altogether fitting and proper, there is no dearth of material.

The latest and most persistent rumor betroths him to the Infanta Beatrice of Spain. The Spanish court does not deny this rumor nearly so vigorously as the British court.

Beatrice has always ben popular with her royal English relatives. She is more English than Spanish in type. She is charming and young, only 18. She has that vivacity which men are supposed to love; in fact she is known as "the royal girl tomboy of Europe." To be sure she is Catholic, but officialdom would know how to surmount that obstacle.

Princess Marta of Sweden and Princess Feodora of Denmark are officially considered two of Europe's most eligible princesses for the prince, because they are Protestant and present no baffling international problems.

Marta is a sister of Astrid, now Crown Princess of Belgium, and with her sister had been a frequent and welcome visitor at the English court. She is 26 and a model of domesticity.

Among maidens nearer Prince "Davy's" own vintage is Princess Hilda, sister of the Grand Duchess of Luxemburg. Hilda has six sisters, and 'tis said that the 7 girls vowed to enter a Carmelite convent if unwed by the time they were 25. They are very wealthy, and will not marry Germans.

The Prince of Wales has been reported engaged at various times to all three daughters of the King of Italy. But Mafalda and Yolanda are both wed now, and only Giovanna remains.

Julianna of Holland, last descendant of the House of Orange, which gave Holland three kings, one queen, seven stadholders, and one English king, is, in some way, considered Europe's greatest royal matrimonial catch, as she will have a throne in her own right. But—well, if she weren't a princess she would be said to lack "it." She is 18, stocky, studious, serious, and even the oldest Moguls of England hardly vision their dance-footed "Davy" married to Julianna.

Then there is Princess Irene of Greece, sister of ex-King George II of Greece, and a niece of the former German kaiser. But—well, nobody knows just why!

Pretty Princess Marie Jose of Belgium is just 20, dark and curly haired as are the girls with whom the prince seems to like to dance, musical and athletic. But—again!

Ingrid Is Popular.

There is 17-year-old Princess Ingrid, daughter of the Crown Prince of Sweden by his first wife, and one of Europe's most popular princesses. There are the sisters of Princess Olga of Greece, who, once rumored as Edward Windsor's betrothed, is now wed to another. Her sisters, Elisabeth and Martanna, and her cousins, Marguerite and Theodora, daughters of Prince Andrew of Greece, now live in England and are well known to the Windsors.

Meanwhile, as England lists the possibilities, Prince "Davy" goes his way, visiting the public halls of Whitechapel and Cheapside, dancing with factory girls when he wants to, grinning, dancing, laying cornerstones of public buildings, and sticking his fingers in his ears when the matrimonial adding machine gets to going.

URGES FARM IMMIGRATION

ST. LOUISAN SUGGESTS "AMPLE, LOW PRICED LABOR."

PROBLEMS IMPORTANT

Cities Cannot Grow Without A Prosperous Country Surrounding, Financier Declares.

Mexico, Mo., June 23.—Cities cannot grow and continue to prosper without a prosperous country surrounding, and a portion of the energy and intelligence which has been directed toward the development of industry for many years should be turned toward the solution of rural problems, Lon Sanders, president of the American Security Credit Company of St. Louis, told two hundred members of Audrain County Chamber of Commerce, Woman's, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs here at a dinner which many farmers also attended.

"Full understanding of the labor situation is of vital concern to farm progress," Sanders said, favoring amendment of present immigration laws to supply "ample, low priced labor." "This idea contemplates restricting immigrants entering this country to people who are accustomed to living on farms, with the understanding they must follow agriculture for a reasonable period.

"The probable success of the plan suggested of sending them direct to the soil would be governed by the fact that they would be accustomed to living on farms, and unaccustomed to living in industrial centers. Gradual equalization in conditions should give to the farm many of the luxuries which draw portions of our city population away from the farm and to the cities.

"Through the progress of agricultural colleges with the advancement of science and chemistry, great increases have been made in production, and it would be out of order for me to attempt any suggestions for improvements in raising farm products. Problems of salesmanship, distribution and consumption, are necessary of solution to secure a proper return for the labor and investment of the farmer.

"Successful farming today should have the benefit of the same selling care which has been devoted to the development of successful manufacturing industries. To secure this, manufacturing and agriculture must enter into a closer relationship for an exchange of ideas coordinated with advice and assistance which has been utilized by men who have built the commerce and industry of this country.

"A large portion of successful men in cities are indebted to the farms of rural life for the foundation of their careers, and it has been correctly stated that some of the best types of mental and physical vigor have been drawn from the farm. Those men fully appreciate how important agriculture is as a business, and that marketing needs the attention previously concentrated about production methods."

Success in life is founded on faith, whether in business, civic or personal careers, Sanders declared. Natural advantages are wonderful as a foundation, but more important is the spirit of the people, and an unlimited faith of the Col. Lindbergh type, backed by untiring zeal, will do much to solve the farm problems of Missouri and the Central West, he concluded.

Projects Started by Graham 4-H Clubs

The Sewing Bees, first year class in 4-H Club work met Thursday afternoon, June 16, at the Community Hall. Work was begun on tea towels, the first project of this year's work. Club songs and yells and the regular business meeting preceded the adjournment.

The second year 4-H Hawthorne Club held their meeting at the Community Hall Thursday afternoon, June 16 from 2 until 4 o'clock. The meeting was called by the president. After the regular business meeting patterns were cut for undergarments that are to be completed by the next meeting. Record books were filled out and meeting adjourned.

The third year "Show Me State" 4-H Club also held its regular meeting on Thursday June 16 at the Community Hall in Graham. A business meeting was held with president in charge. Club songs and yells were given and the class adjourned to its work. Undergarments for the winter wardrobe were started and are to be finished by the next meeting.

Columbia May Have a Forestry Station

Establishment Is Proposed For Study Of Growth And Protection Of Timber Crops.

Columbia, Mo., June 23.—A government forestry station for the Missouri, Mississippi and Ohio river valleys may be established here it was learned following a conference between Earl Clapp, and Edward McCarthy, government representatives and Dean F. B. Mumford of the Missouri College of Agriculture.

The proposed station, provided for by the last session of congress, will undertake the study of methods of growing and protecting timber crops, particularly for the benefit of farmers, as well as the problem of returning cut-over lands to a productive state.

The station's field of activity will cover Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, and Western Kentucky and Tennessee. It will be the base from which foresters will work the surrounding territory.

Sequiota State Park Is Closed to Public

Jefferson City, Mo., June 23.—Sequiota State Park, near Springfield, has been closed to the public for the first time since it was made a park, as a result of some of the worst storms of the season.

Several hundred dollars damage was done to the grounds alone by the flood waters which tore through the park early this week, washing away the gravel walks and tearing down rock embankments which it will take several weeks to replace.

Considerable damage was done to the state fish hatchery. Many thousands of small mouth bass and rainbow trout were washed away when Sequiota Lake overflowed. The water rose to a depth of 10 feet in the hatchery building and when it receded left a coating of about six inches of mud in its wake.

Kansas Farmers Cry for Beer Kegs Now

Topeka, Kan., June 23.—Prohibition has caused a problem to Kansas wheat farmers and there is a wild scurrying on the part of some to find a substitute for the once easy-to-get beer keg.

Since the advent of prohibition, beer kegs are hard to find. The Kansas farmer at present has need of many kegs or a good substitute.

In 1915, when there was a great deal of rain, beer kegs were used as "bull wheels" to keep binders from sinking down in the mud. This year there has been so much rain that some fields are virtual bogs and the binders, reapers, and combines are making hard work of the job.

A good supply of beer kegs will save the day, according to the farmers.

Hog Cholera Bad in Southeast Missouri

Poplar Bluff, Mo., June 23.—Hog cholera is prevalent in Butler County and in Southeast Missouri at present, according to county agent F. H. Darnall. Many farmers have lost valuable herds of animals, and every effort is being made to stop the ravages of the disease.

Men in virtually every community in this section have been instructed in the use of anti-cholera serum, and an effort is being made to vaccinate every large herd, especially hogs in the affected district, in this part of the state.

Says Earth Will Cease to Rotate Eventually

London, June 23.—The earth eventually will cease to rotate and will become a stationary object, one-half with sunshine and the other half with eternal darkness, according to Dr. Andrew Crommelin, formerly assistant astronomer at the Royal Observatory, who recently retired after 36 years of service.

Dr. Commelin declared here recently that at the present rate of "slowing" in its rotation, the earth would cease to rotate in some "few millions of years." He attributed the "slowing" to friction of the tides.

"The world is safe enough, however," he said, "so far as everyone who is on it now is concerned."

Referring to life on other planets and heavenly bodies, Dr. Crommelin declared so far as science knows at the present there is no life on the moon "Life on the moon," he said, "would be impossible unless there is some animal there that can live without air."

SERVICEABLE FUN.

Many a bride has been ridiculed because she started her home-making career without even knowing how to boil water. That is a jibe that cannot be uttered against any of the younger generation who have received experience and training as Boy or Girl Scouts or members of similar organizations.

The useful and delightful things those youngsters learn are numerous and amazing. Some of them may seem foolish to skeptical adults, but wig-wag signalling, knot-tying and wall-scaling develop mental alertness and muscle co-ordination even if never put to any other practical use. First-aid, life-saving methods for swimmers, making fire by friction and building a camp fire hot enough to boil water without being so big as to be a menace to the surrounding scentry, are all eminently practical subjects of instruction.

These are the days for learning and practicing such arts. Many a family, including the grown-ups as well as the children, could make the summer months happier, healthier and more genuinely useful by taking camp-craft. If they can't get into the woods, they can try out some of these things in their own yards.

"GETTING HIS."

(Omaha Bee and News.)

Gertrude Ederle, who swam the English channel, is reported to have advised Col. Lindbergh to "get his while the getting is good." One is inclined to remark that Gertrude's philosophy is probably largely responsible for the fact that she didn't "get" as much out of her adventure as she evidently hoped to get. It will be remembered that she had provided herself a press agent in advance and a financial manager as well. She was all set to turn her exploit into handsome profits. Others started out with their managers and their press agents and for a time everybody seemed to want to swim the channel and so many of them did Gertrude's exploit suddenly flattened out.

Lindbergh had no press agent, he had no financial manager. He did not start out with the sole purpose of "sewing up everything" so the public would have to "give him his." He has also had the good sense not to regard himself as a hero, though the people of the world have given worship as a hero. He did a fine job in a splendid manner and let the facts speak for themselves. As a consequence the money rewards are coming to him naturally. Gertrude's philosophy is a mistaken philosophy. A fine piece of work will always bring its own rewards. Gertrude is largely forgotten because she was so intent upon "getting hers." Lindbergh will be remembered because he made his flight for the flight's sake. Men and women who do worthwhile things in that way will find that their money rewards will follow after.

"Lindy," turning down the fabulous offers of movie magnates, said he didn't have a "million dollar itch," but millions are coming to him because he so thoroughly deserves them.

DON'T TAMPER WITH YOUR BRAIN TANK, SAYS EDITORIAL.

Brains are mighty fine instruments. Everybody has a set of them, but almost nobody seems to know how to make them run. Folks worry too much about them. The worst thing in the world for an automobile engine is to be tinkering with it all the time. Give it oil and gas and let it go. And the same with brains. If you feed oil and gas to yours they will do the job. Just fill your tank with facts and let your brain handle them without forever poking in a monkey wrench. Your brain will think straight if you will let it. The trouble is you throw it all out of gear by twiddling gadgets and whatnots. Your brain is bound to think truly from cause to effect if you don't confuse it, or wrench it around. You can't expect a brain to work if you cramp it with selfishness, prejudice, personal dislikes, and untruths.—Editorial in the American Boy Magazine.

Where Milk Makes the Mare Go.

(Detroit News)

The American people appear to be getting the milk-drinking habit. There are statistics to prove that Mr. Average American drank nearly a gallon more milk last year than the year before. Furthermore, his growing fondness for the simple beverage is evidenced by the fact that he consumed twelve gallons more last year than in 1920.

The average per capita consumption of milk in the United States in 1920 was forty-three gallons. By 1925 it had increased to 54.75, and in 1926, to 55.3.

The National Dairy Council has completed a survey which indicates that much of this increased use of milk is due to the general practice of factory workers taking milk at luncheon and at other times. It is said that in many places factory management encourages this.

The Daily Council considers that a sort of beneficient circle is resulting, since when the factory workers buy milk they increase the prosperity of the farmers, who, in turn, have more money to buy the products of the factories.

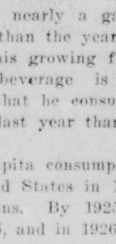
BILLY EVANS Says



Trading Of Farrell Surprises.

Trading an infielder batting around the .400 mark is decidedly unusual. That is what happened the other day when Manager John McGraw of the Giants closed a deal with the Boston Braves.

Eddie Farrell is the young man McGraw parted with in order to bloster his pitching and catching.

YOU FIRST, MY DEAR GASTON.

This spring, when Shortstop Travis Jackson was operated on for appendicitis, Farrell was called upon to take his place and did a brilliant job.

Always regarded as a mighty good fielder, he lived up to expectations in that respect, while at the bat he was a sensation. He has vied with Hornsby since the opening of the season for batting honors in the Giants' lineup.

Few managers would tempt fate as has John McGraw in parting with a player so highly regarded as Eddie Farrell.

Has Courage Of Convictions.

John McGraw, however, has the courage of his convictions and when he believes by letting go of a star in some spots in which his club is strong, he can strengthen a weak link, there is no stopping him.

In the spring, while looking his club over at Sarasota, Fla., McGraw assured me that he was perfectly satisfied with his infield. He feared for the outfield and battery strength.

Figuring that Terry could fill the bill at first base, he parted with the versatile George Kelley for Edd Roush. He wanted a centerfielder to stabilize his outfield. Roush has performed most satisfactorily in the field, but has disappointed at the bat.

Boasting a major league average of .333 over a period of 12 years, Roush has been off nearly 100 points this season. Strangely enough, Kelly, who has a .300 average during his 11 years as a big leaguer, has hit even worse than Roush.

Looks very much as if this would be an off year for both Roush and Kelly at the bat, unless they take a surprising brace.

McGraw Often Trades Stars.

Getting back to Eddie Farrell and his rather unexpected transfer to the Boston Braves.

With Travis Jackson going good at short again, McGraw no doubt felt he could spare an infielder of Farrell's ability to get a pitcher like Larry Benton and a catcher like Zack Taylor.

While it hardly seems possible that Farrell will displace Manager Bancroft at short, for Boston, no doubt a spot will be found for him in the infield.

It is not the first time that McGraw has cut loose from a great prospect in order to add immediate strength to his club. He once traded Edd Roush, later to take him back as a real star. He did the same with Heinie Groh.

In a year or two we may again find Eddie Farrell back with the Giants. Stranger things have happened in baseball.

Pitching Giants' Weak Spot.

In the spring McGraw was dubious as to his pitching staff. Since Hughie McQuillen and Kent Greenfield went along with Farrell to Boston, it would seem his fears had been justified.

The passing of McQuillen was no great surprise. He has met with only mediocre success the past two seasons. He has been in the majors 10 years and no doubt has passed the peak of his game.

The trading of Greenfield was rather unexpected. While he has not been able to win this year, he seemed to be a pretty good prospect. He is only 23 and is in his third year in the majors. His first season, he won 12 and lost eight, a great start; but since then has not done so well.

Larry Benton, the pitcher secured by McGraw from the Braves, has a world of stuff but is inclined to be wild. He should win consistently for a team like the Giants.

Lithuania at War, But Poland Isn't

It Takes Two to Make a Fight, Says Polish Minister.—Other Relations "Satisfactory."

Geneva, June 23.—A state of war exists in Europe that the world in general is unaware of, said August Zaleski, Polish foreign minister, in an interview in which he revealed Poland's relations with neighboring countries.

Lithuania, he said, still insists that war exists over Vilna, which Poland acquired from Lithuania. Poland, on the other hand, the minister said, insists that peaceful relations exist between the two countries.

"We recently sent a note to Lithuania asking that she officially recognize peace with Poland," he stated.

"Our relations with all our neighbors are satisfactory. I am convinced that the Soviet note on the murder of their minister to Poland furnishes the basis for an amicable settlement between the two countries.

He said Poland's relations with Germany were "fully normal" and that all questions had been fully settled except certain economic one for which "an amicable solution can always be found."

Because Poland's exports are entirely agricultural and Germany's are mainly manufactured, it will be difficult to find a basis for establishing a trade balance between the two nations, Zaleski explained.

Poland's relation with the little entente, Jugo-Slavia, Czech-Slovakia, and Roumania are the very best, the minister said, in spite of the fact that Poland is not a member of the alliance. Poland he said either by individual treaties or other means had established the friendliest of relations with all the members of this group.

Negotiations have long been under way with Russia, he said, for a treaty of non-agression.

"The principal difficulty," Zaleski said, "is that Russia is not a member of the League of Nations and refuses to recognize its existence.

Spy System Still Used by All Nations

Gathering of Military and Other Secrets From Other Countries a General Practice.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer.

Washington, June 23.—One of the most fascinating factors of international relations is the great spy system.

The giveaway on the great network of espionage maintained by the nations of the world always comes when a spy is caught red-handed. Ordinarily it works very quietly and then, every year or two, evidence of its operations comes to light and one is immediately met with the informed comment—often defensive—that all governments employ spies to gather military and other secrets from other countries.

The latest instance of this followed the British howl of virtuous indignation against Russian espionage. The British presumably found much less than they expected to find in the Arcos raid, and the assumption also is that they would have found more had they suddenly raided the flabbergasted embassy of one or more of the other great powers.

At any rate, Lloyd George, who knows a great deal about the British government as well as about other European governments, was only one of several who pointed out publicly that all governments spied upon each other and stole each other's documents.

There is no indication that our own government can lay claim to any pious freedom from such tactics. It would be asleep on its feet if it could.

You hear, in confidence, strange yarns about the international spy system as it affects the United States.

Some of the stories probably are not true—but some of them probably are. There is enough evidence even on the surface to indicate that military and naval attaches in world capitals manage the clearing houses for subterranean information bought and otherwise obtained from spies. The likelihood is that they haven't anything much else to do.

It will be recalled that our own military attache in Mexico City was recently in the limelight when important documents which had passed through his hands were obtained by the Mexican government. A splendid job of international hushing was performed and the incident seemed a turning point in relations between the two countries, but in all fairness it should be said that no official proof was ever produced to show that the attache had done anything that wasn't open and aboveboard.

It was obvious, however, that there had been certain military espionage along the border which seems to have been practiced by both sides.

Enemies Ten Years Ago, German And Canadian Now Pals in Work

H. Ratcliffe and W. Siligman, who once fought against each other in opposing machine gun units, now face each other across a desk in the Chicago Works of the Western Electric Company.

Ten years ago in the war-infested area of Western Europe, two veterans, separated by No Man's Land, were turning machine guns against each other. Today they face each other across a desk, both engaged in the friendly business of a telephone manufacturing works, the chief product of which goes far toward linking the world together in peace.

Such is the dramatic story of H. Ratcliffe, one time of the Canadian Army, and of W. Siligman, one time German machine gunner. As a part of a Canadian machine gun company, Ratcliffe was pitted against Siligman and others of a German unit for the possession of Passchendaele, Moorslede and other towns in that sea of mud mendaciously indicated as dry land by the map-makers and labeled "Belgium."

Not long ago as they were seated across from each other in one of the office rooms of the Hawthorne Works of the Western Electric Company in Chicago, they fell into a discussion of those memorable days.

"What branch of service were you in?" asked Ratcliffe. "I was a machine gunner in the German infantry," Siligman answered. "What battles were you in?" Siligman started to enumerate them. "Well, I was at Passchendaele—" "At Passchendaele," interrupted Ratcliffe, "so was I."

They soon realized how dangerous they had been to each other in that Belgium battle. For it developed that each had stayed by his gun in such a manner as to receive special recognition for their bravery.

Siligman, before coming to this country, was a tool designer at Krupp's Essen Works. Ratcliffe came to Chicago from Winnipeg.

Tricks of Fate Turn McQuillan Back to Braves

Once Bought By McGraw For $100,000 And Benton. He Now Is "Tossed In" In Trade For Benton.

New York, June 23.—The tricky turns of fate that make baseball what it is have a perfect illustration in the case of Hughie McQuillan, a pitcher who never seemed to realize his natural talents.

In 1922 McQuillan was with the Boston Braves and fans over the National League circuit predicted he might mount to the topmost rung. The Giants bought him for $100,000 and, by way of sealing the bargain, tossed in a young hurler known as Larry Benton.

Recently Benton was traded to the Giants. And McQuillan was one of the three New York players figuring in the deal. He has gone back to Boston with a cloudy past and a none too roseate future while Benton is recognized as one of the leading pitchers of the year.

Benton now is more highly regarded than was McQuillan five years ago before the latter failed to live up to expectations.

Hughie had a tough time with John McGraw. It may be that under Braves' management he can take advantage of previously wasted chances and become one of the stars of the league. But with McGraw he petered out.

Jawn has been trying to trade Hughie every year. He was going to the Cubs for Alexander in 1925 but the deal fell through. At another time McGraw planned to send him to Toledo as a punishment but that transaction also failed to materialize. There is no doubt that in addition to the clash of temperaments, Hughie was bothered by domestic troubles. He has figured in court actions, when his mind should have been on pitching baseball.

The other giant pitcher who went to the Braves with McQuillan and Eddie Farrell in exchange for Benton, Taylor and Thompson also was a disappointment in New York. Kent Greenfield has lots of stuff and two years ago was looked upon as the New Yorkers' forthcoming mound ace.

But Greenfield became obsessed with the idea that he was a hot weather pitcher and could not be expected to win games in the spring. If there is anything to the idea he will have a tough time at Boston where the cold weather hangs on longer than in any other big league city.

But McQuillan and Greenfield may work better for "Beauty" Bancroft than for John McGraw. Lack of restraint at times improves the arm as well as the disposition.

Jewish Leaders in Annual Conference

Preservation of Ancient Faith Among Students to Be One of Principal Topics.

Cape May, N. J., June 23.—Three hundred leaders of Jewish life in the United States gathered today for the 38th annual convention of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. For six days beginning tonight the delegates will confer upon pastoral, religious, educational, communal and secular subjects.

Not only rabbis who are members of the conference but leading Jewish laymen will join the discussions.

An outstanding topic of discussion will be religious work in the country's universities. Preservation of the ancient faith among students is one of the goals of the conference.

Another subject scheduled for discussion is "The Relation of the Synagogue to Physical and Mental Healing" and a symposium has been set for Sunday, June 26. Noted speakers will attempt to set down the line of demarcation at which the mental and physical healing tenets encroach upon pure Jewish religious faith.

Stamp Collectors Given Recognition

U. S. Government Has A Special Agency To Fill Requests For New And Rare Issues.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington, June 23. — Grown-up stamp collectors have apparently convinced the government that theirs is a regular calling.

Or perhaps it's just good business judgment on the part of the Postoffice Department, for the department's Philatelis Agency last year sold $135,875.94 worth of uncanceled United States stamps to collectors.

This agency, whose sole business is the sale of such stamps to such customers, was established in 1921.

Stamp collectors and dealers, known among themselves as philatelists, buy a quantity of each new issue as it comes out. They are also in the market for issues no longer current, including all commemorative issues.

No true philatelist will allow an imperfectly centered stamp in his album if he can get a better one. "Perfect centres," as they are known to the fraternity and to the Postoffice, are stamps whose white borders are equally spaced on all four sides. As soon as a new stamp goes on sale, an adequate supply of "perfect centres" is sent to the Philatelic Agency, which is housed in the Washington Postoffice.

Want Perfect Stamps.

The department found that collectors were having a terrible time getting those "perfect centres" before there was any organized clearing house for them. Postoffice clerks were also having a terrible time, what with requests to pull down all their stamps from the sheives and let the collectors search through them for what they wanted. There was always a scramble at the larger postoffices in other cities when a new stamp came out.

The department came to feel that everybody concerned was entitled to more consideration, so, under Postmaster General Will Hays, the new division was opened. The first thing done was to order all postmasters to send back all stamps on hand not of current vintage which might be of special interest to the philatelists, as the department had promised to sell all available isues. This roundup brought in a few stamps on which dealers had placed a premium—such as the Columbian exposition set—but these were soon gobbled up.

Today the Philatelic Agency receives 10,000 or 12,000 orders a year by mail or wire, both from dealers and collectors in this country and in Europe. Most foreign orders came from Germany. Many American collectors come in person to look over the suply on hand.

Sold At Face Value.

The orders are filled in the order of their coming with "perfect centres" and all stamps are sold at face value, regardless of what dealers may charge for them afterward. The agency publishes a list of all stamps available for sale and these date back to 1895.

Petting Parties Not Banned in Racine, Wis.

Younger Generation There Declares "It's a Great Old Town"—Bathing Costumes Unrestricted.

Racine, Wis., June 23.—"It's a great old town," Racine's younger generation declares in loud and joyous tones. Restrictions on "petting parties" were removed recently when the chief of police announced that as long as couples kept within the bounds of propriety their "petting parties" would not be molested.

Now to further increase the pleasure of the young folks, I. B. Farmer, superintendent of parks, has declared the bathing beach censor on bathing suits will be an unknown quantity in Racine this summer.

Bathers are advised to "let their conscience be their guide" but of course if they go too much to extrem the officials will do some suggesting, it was intimated.

"I am no believer in rigid restrictions in bathing attire," Farmer said. "Where the restrictions are the severest, the most trouble is found.

"No one can tell me that our boys and girls will not be modest. In fact they are less apt to be immodest with no restrictions to bother them. They do not like a lot of "don't do this or don't do thats."

"I am positive our girls won't wear bathing costumes that will shock anyone," Farmer continued in explaining his reasons for letting down the bars restrieting the shortness, tightness, weight and general design of bathing suits.

Thrift Aids Courage

(Editorial in Forbes Magazine.)

Thriftlessness often fosters cowardice. Thrift inspires courage. Shiftless persons rarely have much backbone. They are so dependent upon others for assistance that often they cannot assert themselves to preserve their self-respect. Their wasteful habits sap their self-reliance, their self-assurance. The thrifty individual, on the other hand, has learned to stand on his own feet. He has learned how to take care of himself, how to manage his affairs, how to provide against emergencies, therefore, he is little inclined to submit to uncalled for indignities. Nor is he afraid to take reasonable risks. His financial backing gives him courage. And without courage few successful careers have been built up. Thus we arrive te this formula: Thrift develops success.

HARMONY

Attendance at Sunday School last Sunday was above the average, there being 79 present. The preaching service was also equally as good in proportion on Sunday morning. The subject of the sermon was "Foreign Missions," and was well received by the entire congregation. Mrs. Cunningham was the preacher.

The night service was the children's day program, which was very well rendered. The thought throughout was that of Foreign missions.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lund of Kansas City were Sunday visitors of Mrs. Lund's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Parent.

Mr. and Mrs. Sechrets of Topeka, Kan., Mr. and Mrs. George Wilcox and daughters of Merdin, Kan., and Mrs. Ora Wells of Stapleton, Neb., were visitors at the home of Will Rhoades last week.

Mildred Fanning of Shenandoah, Ia., was visiting her many old friends and making new ones over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Young of Maryville visited at the Casteel home Sunday.

Milt Brown and family and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis of Ravenwood motored to Shenandoah, Ia., Sunday.

The pastors were entertained Sunday in the beautiful new home of Mr. and Mrs. Shube Coffelt. This modern home stands as a monument to the community spirit which exists in the Harmony neighborhood. Mr. and Mrs. Coffelt say that we can never express our apreciation of the kindness shown us by our neighbors and friends in our time of need.

The young folks entertained Miss Mildred Fanning at a picnic Sunday.

A new roof on the church has become almost an established fact, and by the help of a few more of the friends, the fact will be assured.

The Vacation Bible School will begin next Monday, June 27. All children are invited to enter, whether they are members of the Sunday School or not.

A very hearty invitation is extended to attend the services throughout next Sunday. This means you.

You can't live a well-rounded life unless you are square.

What a good "or a bad" rug can do to your home--

No matter how nice all your other furnishings may be, a poorly-selected rug can kill the effect. On the other hand, a good rug, with the right color effect, will "help," or rather "bring up" even ordinary furnishings.

Our advice is this: Inasmuch as you can purchase your rug here on the basis of as little as a dollar a week, why not pay a few weeks longer and have a rug that will always satisfy you?

A poor rug must soon be replaced. That makes it costly. A poor rug will soon become an "eye-sore" about the house. That makes it bad to own one.

We do not know when the patterns and colorings have been so lovely as they are in the new Spring stocks we have just received. You are welcome to look them over—even if you are not buying yet.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

To the queer little South American town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, a town fringed by dark, forbidding jungle, comes an elderly American, LINCOLN NUNNALLY, a chemist.

Nunnally, registers at the ramshackle hotel and steps out on the balcony. A beautiful young girl drives past in a chaise, accompanied by a negro woman and a small child. To the American's amazement, she waves to him, then drives on. He sees two sinister looking men watch the girl, exchange mysterious signals, then follow her.

Another surprise is in store for him. In the barber shop, the barber, a strange dark man with an Oriental cast to his eyes, speaks to him. He then recognizes the barber as VILAKA WEST, known to him as VILAK, a fellow American and former chemistry pupil. He asks Vilak what he is doing in Porto Verde. To his amazement, Vilak says he has sent for him, that he and his cousin, who was the young lady Nunnally had seen from the balcony, owned the Porto Verde Development Co., and were in need of some assistance in getting at the root of a mystery that had already cost several lives and threatened their own.

The barber business, Vilak explains, serves to conceal his real activities. In the midst of his explanations, word reaches him that another man, one of his cousin's foremen, had been murdered.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER 3

Vilak rubbed the towel vigorously against the old man's face, then hurried outside. Nunnally followed asthmatically behind. They half walked, half ran down the road, along a small stream which drained into the river on which lay the town. Around them were low hills whose slopes in a few places were bright with coffee plants, but everywhere else were dark with the black greenness of the jungle. They hurried over a small bridge spanning the stream. As they crossed, they heard someone running behind them. Vilak turned. He pressed his companion's arm. "Take a good look when this man passes," he whispered. "You're having a privilege. He's the American I mentioned to you. Doesn't come to town very often. In this place of picturesque and bizarre individuals, he's by far the most interesting to me."

Nunnally did not wait until the runner had caught up with them, but turned swiftly, to see the newcomer dashing behind. He was a man originally of commanding height and herculean shoulders, but whose body, as though by fever or other tropical diseases, had wasted until it was a shell of its former self. He was clad in grimy white linens but in strange contrast to his tropical garments was wearing around his thin emaciated neck, a stiff, unusually high collar. He made no response to the genial salutation Vilak offered, but taking a new grip on the straw basket in his hand, darted past, and disappeared around a bend. But not before Nunnally had glimpsed a curious mark on his pale white forehead, a series of three small triangles tattooed in thin black lines.

The old man stopped to rest for a moment and gazed after the other with a strong inclination to shudder. But resolved to imitate his companion's coolness, he repressed the impulse, took a cigaret and reached in his pocket for a match he could not find. "He looks. . . er. . .fantastic. Quite fantastic. What's the matter with him? Is he white? Or is he some. . .er. . .queer sort of. . .er . . .half-breed.

"He's white, white, you occidental egoist," Vilak returned, "white as the lilies of Sharon. You'll probably be interested to know that his name is Gaylord Prentiss."

". . .Er. . .Prentiss, the archeologist who explored for the Museum of. . .er . . .Natural History. . .Natural History and left a few years ago. . .er. . .under a cloud after he had been concerned. . . er. . .concerned in some. . .er. . .scandal?

"None other, my dear Nanny."

The old man had found the matches in the lining of his coat. "What's the . . .er. . .matter with him? How did he get that. . .er. . .mark on his forehead?"

"Ask him, mon cher, ask him. . .several have. . . .And been politely knocked down for their pains. Can you run again for a little? We ought to hurry."

"In a. . .er. . .minute." The old man breathed heavily. "Horrible looking. . .horrible. What is he doing. . . er. . .here. . .here?"

"That's one of the things I'm interested in finding out. The natives believe he's the center of all the apparently diabolical things which have been happening. Elise has tried to talk to him and failed miserably. She took an interest in him naturally, because he's a fellow-countryman, but particularly because there'd been a lot of bad blood between his father and her own, when old Prentiss lived on his fazenda near here, and she hadn't any use for silly family feuds."

Nunnally glanced at him quizzically. "You think very highly of your . . . er . . . . cousin," he murmured. "Are you . . . . er . . . . in love with her?"

"Innocent, innocent as a babe. Women to a criminologist are an unmitigated nuisance. They arouse emotions and clog up the machinery. The really perfect detective should be born like an amoeba, without father or mother. This way, he'd have no emotional traditions to affect his judgment. My position here, as most things are nowadays, is a purely economic one. Elise sent for me because it's getting very difficult to hire labor for the fazenda. Incidentally, it's toward Prentiss' place we're heading. Elise's men often use this as a short cut to town. Now don't start talking again," he flashed as the other's lips parted. "Save your breath, we must be running.

They sped forward again. For a short distance the highway skirted the antiquated railroad paralleling the stream. A short distance farther on was a siding on which stood a few battered freight cars. Here they left the road and took a narrow lane which led up the higher ground above the stream. Their path grew constantly wilder and more dismal. Great vines hung down from a dark canopy of foliage overhead and like huge black serpents knotted themselves stranglingly about the somber trees; swollen brooks murmured in doleful, incessant chorus as they euded in the myriad tiny lakes and ponds which sparkled everywhere.

The travelers rounded a tangled bend, then saw a crowd clustered about a lofty parasol pine a hundred yards ahead, a motley group made up of negro laborers in muddy but brilliant packets or torn overalls, a few breech-clouted Indians wearing huge straw hats, and two or three gaping children staring furtively from behind the trees. Above them all towered one of the huge blue and red-uniformed negroes who form so large a part of the police force of Brazil.

Briskly Vilak elbowed his way through the onlookers who, with their characteristic apathy, let him pass without resistance. He stepped forward. The excited Joao had told the truth. On the ground, near a thicket of thorns, lay stretched the body of a middle-aged Italian, Tony Barbetta, once a fruit peddler in Providence, R. I., who had come to South America and become one of the most valued foremen on Miss Marberry's fazenda. His cotton breeches were torn and stained with mud; his hands and slightly pock-marked face were scratched and stained with blood; in his scalp was a jagged red hole. Yet though his body was rigid as a statue, seemingly in the paralysis of death, his eyes were gleaming and appeared to express intense bodily anguish.

Near his outstretched feet, handcuffed to the gendarme and staring sulkily at the ground, stood a heavy-set man of the English colonial type, who supervised the gangs that work the mines of Kimberly or tap the rubber trees of the Congo. His face was hard, like the faces of most of those who command in the primitive places of the world; like Prentiss, he had tattoo marks. But these were on his arm and about them there was nothing extraordinary. They seemed merely the tattooing such as is to be found on every sailor; a ship, a howling monkey and a skull and cross-bones. Vilak instantly recognized him as "Limey" Potts, Barbetta's long-time enemy and fellow-worker on the fazenda. Not far away was a heavy wooden club.

Vilak touched the arm of the huge ebony gendarme. "The doctor, you have not called for him?" he asked in quick Portugese.

The gendarme grinned amiably and thrust out his hands in expostulation. "Deus; am I the Almighty God? I cannot all do."

"Pedros! Go to the fazenda of Senorita Marberry and fetch the doctor quick." Vilak snapped to one of the bystanders he knew, then turned to Nunnally, who had joined him. "I should have known better than to depend on these chaps. I could curse myself for dawdling the way we did coming out here. "Lift up his head." The old man obeyed. Vilak took the rigid wrist and felt the pulse. "Twenty," he said in perplexity, "and getting weaker all the time." He looked toward a young peon whose face bore the sign of more intelligence than his fellows. "How long has he been this way, amigos?" he asked.

The native took a thoughtful puff of his cigaret. "Half an hour, three-quarters, maybe he is thees way, I think. Eet is ver' strange how a hit on the head have do thees. He ees dead an' he ees also alive." He shuddered and crossed himself.

(To Be Continued)

There is some strange force at work behind this puzzling tragedy, Vilak thinks. Porto Verde, Nunnally decides, is not a pleasant place.

Fame Finds Him in Black Hills

Rolf Lium had no thought of fame when he accepted a $50-a-month summer pastorate at Hermosa, S. D. But the first sermon the 20-year-old theological student preached in his new charge was heard by none other than President and Mrs. Coolidge. He is pictured here in his local pulpit.

Burlington Junction

(By J. Howard Thompson).

These items are written in Cameron, while the writer is attending the sessions of the Summer school of Theology and will therefore be very incomplete, owing to the distance from home.

This is the annual tourist season again. En route from Burlington Junction to Cameron a few days ago, we either met or passed many tourists with heavily loaded cars going hither and yon on their vacation trips.

The men from Northwest Missouri attending the sessions of the Summer school are D. G. McDougall, of Centennial, H. McNamee of Tarkio, J. Howard Thompson of Burlington Junction, Andy James of Parnell, and W. C. Harper of Hopkins. Dr. C. C. James, formerly of Maryville, is Dean of the school.

George Chambers, living in the north part of town does not improve very fast, if any, since his light stroke of a few weeks ago. He is now confined to his bed nearly all the time. He is past 70 years of age.

D. G. McDougall, the pastor of the Methodist Church at Centennial and Watson, in Atchison County is to be graduated from the course of study this year, and will be ordained as an Elder at the Annual Conference, when it meets in Cameron, in September.

Last Sunday was "Home Coming" at Workman Chapel. The Rev. A. L. Ragsdale preached at 11 o'clock, after which a basket dinner was served. A large crowd was present.

After having driven the coupe in which I get about for four years, I still find it in perfect running order, and able to get up some degree of speed, when and where the roads are good. Last Sunday I left the filling station at exactly two o'clock in the afternoon and arrived in St. Joseph in two hours and ten minutes. Coming on to Cameron, I made the entire distance from Burlington Junction to Cameron, more than a hundred miles in three hours and twenty-five minutes. Not so slow.

The pastor's Sunday school class of boys at the Methodist Church still maintains its high standard of attendance, there being sixteen present last Sunday morning. The class has averaged nineteen ever since its beginning last September.

The services at the Methodist Church were very largely attended last Sunday morning. The program was given by the primary department of the Sunday school, under the direction of the superintendent, Mrs. Nellie Houston. The Rev. A. L. Ragsdale of the Christian Church, dismissed his morning services in honor of the event and many of his people came to the services. The program was of very high order, and greatly pleasing.

Next Sunday night is to be special night at the Methodist church. The pastor will preach in the morning and at night. Miss Alma Corken of St. Joseph, a reader of note, will give a sacred reading in lieu of the sermon. She will be assisted by Mildred Charlene Williams, Iola Graves, and Helen Arnold. Miss Catherine Fleming will sing.

We have reached the Zenith in length of days for another year, as Tuesday June 21, is said to be the longest day of the year. The days now will grow shorter as they come and go, and e'er long we will encounter frosty nights, winter's blast and snows and storms. How rapidly are the seasons and the years speeding by.

Dr. and Mrs. C. C. James, who until recently served the First Methodist Church in Maryville as pastor and wife, but now the district superintendent of the Cameron district, gave a reception to the Summer school faculty and students at their home Tuesday night of this week, which was a very delightful affair. Dr. James is Dean of the school.

Lloyd George Hears Megan Wax Eloquent

Chertsey, Surrey.—Mr. David Lloyd George, the British Liberal Party leader, had an opportunity of hearing his daughter, Megan, wax eloquent in the traditional Welsh manner, here recently.

"I did not come here with intent to make a speech," the statesman told listeners at an exhibition. "I came to fetch the girl home. She gave me serious warning that I was not to arrive until her speech was over. It is the first time I have had the privilege of hearing her, and I think she will do."

Fashion Editor Gives Points on Decoration

By HEDDA HOYT.

(United Press Fashion Editor).

New York, June 23.—People who live in glass houses are lucky for they can see the sunlight. Those who live in dreary apartments benefit of sunlight owing to being crowded closely against other buildings must have a change of indoor scenery during the summer moths.

Where the summer vacationist can cover up furnishings with drab linen slip-covers, the person who remains within four walls from season to season must have rest for the eyesight if not for the body. They must bring summer sunlight into the home by literally filling the place with summer colors.

Yesterday I visited a small cubby-hole of a ground-floor apartment occupied by a young artist and his wife. I had seen this apartment in winter and its darkness combined with the gloominess of its antique Italian furnishings was appalling. I wondered how anyone of an artistic nature could choose such a place. Now, however, it has been turned into one of the most attractive and delightfully restful places that I have seen.

The windows of the studio room which open on a courtyard were curtained with gold theatrical gauze, appliqued with cretonne trees at the hem. They had rummaged about the shops for cretonnes with tree designs, purchased a yard each of several different designs, and appliqued the trees on the gauze so cleverly that when one looked through the curtains toward the court yard one seemed to see yellow sunlight through shadowwy trees. No side curtains were used.

A large church covered in an old bronze green chintz was piped in burnt orange and further enhanced by a violet-hued chintz end pillow. Opposite this, a large over-stuffed chair had a slip-cover of old gold cotton damask. At the darker corner of the room a large highly polished copper bowl held a mass of vari-colored shell flowers of 10 cent store variety. Above an old fireplace the wall space was covered with a width of mauve cretonne in sky design with flying pheasants. Owing to the darkness of the room this added bit of apparent sky seemed to bring brightness.

When one has sunlight, colors need not be as gay as where rooms are dark.

Miners to Insist on Present Wage Scale

Union Workers in Central Competitive Field Will Never Accept Reduction, Says Illinois Chief.

Benton, Ill., June 23.—Declaring that he would never consent to a reduction of wages in the mining industry of the Central Competitive Fields beyond that provided for in the Jacksonville agreement, Harry Fishwick, the "little fire-eater" president of the Illinois Mine Workers, in a speech here to members of Sub-district number 9, to "stick by their guns, and fight it out."

"We are going to stick together until hell freezes over," Fishwick declared. He told the miners that they must have the courage to stick to the fight; that the pathway now had no more thorns strewn along its way than it has had many times before, and that they would be able to do the things they should do if they work together.

In offering remedies for the ills of the mining industry of this country, President Fishwick enumerated three plans that would, in his opinion be necessary for the placing of the industry on a stable foundation.

First, he suggested federal restriction of development, saying that no one should be allowed to develop a new mine unless he can show there is a market for the coal he is to mine.

Second, the organization of every coal field in the United States so there will be no underpaid non-union field competition.

Third, the clearing up of these "discriminations in freight rates" that give the fields south of the Ohio River a decided advantage over the organized fields of Illinois and Indiana.

In discussing the Jacksonville agreement Fishwick said:

"The operators have said they can't pay the Jacksonville wage. We have had, and have now 4,000 men on company work on the Jacksonville scale. I wonder what the public thinks about any institution that says it can't do the things it is doing.

"I have asked the public to bear in mind that as miners we be given the right to earn the things they have coming to them.

"We work 149 days a year and must live 365 days a year. They said if we work for less we can make more by getting more work. Nobody can guarantee the miners of Illinois one more days work if we work for nothing. We can't all work every day, even though we donate our labor. The market will take just so much coal and no more.

"They say there are too many miners, but I don't know why that is. I wonder if it is an invitation for some of us to commit suicide. They sank the mines," Fishwick concluded.
